

war correspondent when he is in the net of sending out advice to the government home country, some here or villain may drop into the office and spell all his plans, to say nothing of delaying the news which the world so anxiously awaits. However, this is just by way of an introduction. The principal thing is to observe that Desmond, the international crook, is a captive and that a summons is going out for help. As the censor himself is present, there is no doubt that the message will go through. At least, there does not appear to be any doubt, but the enreless shot of a soldler guarding the line of communications severs the wire, and no help is summoned. But the Turkish troops are on the siert and marching to capture the telegraph and telephone office. In to-morrow's paper there will be some astenishing ac-tion as the result of the message having been interrupted. While waiting for that, glance below and observe how-
